Epiphany (Baptism of our Lord)

Readings: Tit 2:11-3:7 and Lk 3:15-22

“John was in the wilderness baptizing and proclaiming a baptism of penance for the forgiveness of sins”

The Church ends this Joyous season of Christmas with the recounting of Jesus' baptism. We are moving into Epiphany Season and today's readings dampen our spirits a bit. True, we hear the poetry of Isaiah that sets the stage for the coming of a Messiah. True, we hear John's prophecy, and we hear the voice from heaven declaring: “You are my Son, the Beloved.” True, these are beautiful and inspiring stories. But they cause us to think of Great Lent.

It is that whole symbolism of baptism thing, the plunging into the waters of chaos and death, dying to self in order to rise a new creation. All of Lent draws us to baptism, to go out into the wilderness and face our demons, so that we can ultimately conquer them and journey to Jerusalem to die with Christ.

The romance of new birth ends and the reality of 2 o'clock feedings weary our souls. The decorations are stored away and the winter blahs chill our hearts. We're not yet ready for these stories of the man Jesus. We want to enjoy the stories of the child Jesus a little longer, gradually adjust to his growing and maturing and beginning his short-lived career. But we are plunged, as in baptism; plunged into the reality of Christian discipleship.

Story

Bill owns a company that manufactures and installs car wash systems. Bill's company installed a car wash system in Frederick, Maryland. Now, understand that these are complete systems, including the money changer and money taking machines.

The problem started when the new owner complained to Bill that he was losing significant amounts of money from his coin machines each week.

He went as far as to accuse Bill's employees of having a key to the boxes and ripping him off. Bill just couldn't believe that his people would do that, so they set up a camera to catch the thief in action. Well, they did catch him on film!

That's a bird sitting on the change slot of the machine.

The bird had to go down into the machine, and back up inside to get to the money!

That's three quarters he has in his beak! Another amazing thing is that it was not just one bird -- there were several working together. Once they identified the thieves, they found over $4,000 in quarters on the roof of the car wash and more under a nearby tree.

And you thought you heard of everything!!

You might know that it is a Starling.

This gives a new twist to the term "nest egg".

And to think the phrase 'bird brain' is associated with being dumb. Not these birds. Share the story!!

Noisy Water

In ancient India water used to be drawn out of wells by means of the Persian wheel, a convenient device whose only drawback was the great noise it made when in operation.

One day a horseman happened to pass by a farm and demanded water for his horse. The farmer gladly put the Persian wheel in motion but the horse, unaccustomed as it was to the noise, wouldn't come anywhere near the well.

"Can't you stop the noise so that my horse can drink?" asked the horseman.

"I'm afraid that isn't possible, sir," said the farmer. "If your horse wishes to drink, he will have to take the water with the noise, for water comes only with noise here."

Weather Forecasting

It was October and the Indians on a remote reservation asked their new Chief if the coming winter was going to be cold or mild. Since he was a Chief in a modern society, he had never been taught the old secrets. When he looked at the sky, he couldn't tell what the winter was going to be like.

Nevertheless, to be on the safe side he told his tribe that the winter was indeed going to be cold and that the members of the village should collect firewood to be prepared. But being a practical leader, after several days he got an idea. He went to the phone booth, called the National Weather Service and asked, "Is the coming winter going to be cold?"

"It looks like this winter is going to be quite cold," the meteorologist at the weather service responded. So, the Chief went back to his people and told them to collect even more firewood in order to be prepared.

A week later he called the National Weather Service again. "Does it still look like it is going to be a very cold winter?" "Yes," the man at National Weather Service again replied, "it's going to be a very cold winter." The Chief again went back to his people and ordered them to collect every scrap of firewood they could find. Two weeks later the Chief called the National Weather Service again. "Are you absolutely sure that the winter is going to be very cold?" "Absolutely," the man replied. "It's looking more and more like it is going to be one of the coldest winters ever." "How can you be so sure?" the Chief asked. The weatherman replied, "The Indians are collecting firewood like crazy."

Famous Quote

"Father, bless this person in whatever it is that You know he or she may be needing this day!"

Blonde Horseback Riding

A blonde decides to try horseback riding, even though she has had no lessons, nor prior experience. She mounts the horse unassisted, and the horse immediately springs into motion. It gallops along at a steady and rhythmic pace, but the blonde begins to slide from the saddle.

In terror, she grabs for the horse's mane, but cannot seem to get a firm grip. She tries to throw her arms around the horse's neck, but she slides down the horse's side anyway. The horse gallops along, seemingly impervious to its slipping rider.

Finally, giving up her frail grip, the blonde attempts to leap away from the horse and throw herself to safety. Unfortunately, her foot has become entangled in the stirrup; she is now at the mercy of the horse's pounding hooves as her head is struck against the ground over and over. As her head is battered against the ground, she is mere moments away from unconsciousness when to her great fortune Frank, the Wal-Mart greeter, sees her dilemma and unplugs the horse. And you thought all they did was say Hello.

Truth

Old actress: "I really don't know my age. It keeps changing from minute to minute."

Truth

An American tourist was traveling abroad for the first time. On arrival at his first foreign airport, he was faced with a choice between two passageways. One of which was marked CITIZENS and the other ALIENS. He promptly headed for the first one. When told later that he would have to stand in the other line. He protested, "But I'm no alien, I'm an American."

Truth

When the English playwright Oscar Wilde arrived at his club late at night after witnessing the first presentation of a play that had been a complete failure, someone asked, "How did your play go tonight, Oscar?" "Oh," said Wilde, "the play was a great success. The audience was a failure."

Grace

The President of the largest Banking Corporation in the world was in hospital. One of the Vice-Presidents came to visit him with this message:

"I bring you the good wishes of our board of directors, that you should be restored to health and live to be hundred years. That's an official resolution passed by the majority of 15 to 6 with 2 abstentions."
