5th Sunday after the Holy Cross

Readings: Phil 2:12-18 and Mt 25:1-13

Like the bride in the parable of the ten virgins, we know that the bridegroom is coming, but we do not know when: none of us can tell when Christ is coming to take him away in death, no generation of men knows when Christ will return to make the Church triumphant. But because our whole mind and our whole action must be concentrated on that longed-for hour of lodgment, we must always be ready. Lamps are not enough: there must be oil as well. This means that it is not enough to belong outwardly to the Church. We must have a living faith, grace and real love. All equipment and costume are meaningless without them. Only men whose minds are alive with the riches God has given them are ready. Health and beauty, cleverness, energy and courage are of no use if God's grace is not there. Golden lamps of good design are of no use in the dark if they have no oil. "I never knew you", is the answer which Christ will give to those who put their trust in strength, beauty, intelligence or personality, yet had no care for God's word, his grace or love: their lamps were without oil.

Our readiness must be continual. We are not just friends of the bridegroom or the bride, but living members of the Lord's mystical body, living members of the Church, sharing in the betrothal and the marriage. We are not just spectators looking on nearby, not even mere friends invited to the feast. Thus every soul, and the whole Church, should be full of joyful expectancy at Christ's coming. It is natural for us to fear death and try to avoid it, but faith gives us an entirely different view of death. To our naive view of things, death is the end: to faith it is the beginning of great joy. The Christian looks to the future with a restlessness founded in this joy. What Christ has told us, "keep watch, therefore, as you do not know the day or the hour", does not mean a fearful expectancy like that of Noah before the flood, or of the householder who feared the coming of the thief. This waiting of ours is joy. What we are expecting is the fulfillment of the good news, the revelation of God's mystery, the ecstatic happiness of complete communion between God and men. Here will be the fulfillment of all foreshadowing, wishes and longings of ancient myth and Christian mysticism, summed up in the cry of the Apocalypse when the bride says: "Come," and the heavenly Bridegroom answers: "I come quickly."

Family Christmas Breakfast (Sunday, December 8th after 10:00 am Mass)

Come One Come All and join us for our Christmas Family Breakfast. You will enjoy a bountiful breakfast of: Scrambled Eggs; Sausage or Bacon; Hash Brown Potatoes; Toast or Biscuits with Butter, Assorted Jellies or Honey; Mixed Fruit; Orange Juice and Coffee.

Bring the children because we have heard that Santa will make a surprise visit.

Let us start the Christmas Season right with our wonderful Family Christmas Breakfast. A modest donation of $5.00 a person is welcomed.

Your reservation(s) must to be made by Monday, November 24. This is not an open banquet to the public.

Every person is asked to write his/her name or the names of his family members on the sheet of paper and handle it to Msgr Bakhos personally or to one of the ladies of the church so that we can order the right amount of food for everyone.

Donations for Christmas Breakfast

The ladies of the Women's Society are asked to bring donations ASAP for the Christmas Gift Basket Raffle. Wine, candy or any other Christmas items would be a great donation. Also the ladies are collecting candy to prepare treat bags for the children attending the December 8th. Family Christmas Breakfast Party which will follow Mass that day.

Story

I sat, with two friends, in the picture window of a quaint restaurant just off the corner of the town-square. The food and the company were both especially good that day. As we talked, my attention was drawn outside, across the street.

There, walking into town, was a man who appeared to be carrying all his worldly goods on his back. He was carrying, a well-worn sign that read, 'I will work for food.' My heart sank.

I brought him to the attention of my friends and noticed that others around us had stopped eating to focus on him. Heads moved in a mixture of sadness and disbelief. We continued with our meal, but his image lingered in my mind. We finished our meal and went our separate ways. I had errands to do and quickly set out to accomplish them. I glanced toward the town square, looking somewhat halfheartedly for the strange visitor. I was fearful, knowing that seeing him again would call some response. I drove through town and saw nothing of him. I made some purchases at a store and got back in my car.

Deep within me, the Spirit of God kept speaking to me: 'Don't go back to the office until you've at least driven once more around the square.' Then with some hesitancy, I headed back into town. As I turned the square's third corner, I saw him. He was standing on the steps of the store front church, going through his sack.

I stopped and looked; feeling both compelled to speak to him, yet wanting to drive on. The empty parking space on the corner seemed to be a sign from God: an invitation to park. I pulled in, got out and approached the town's newest visitor.

'Looking for the pastor?' I asked. 'Not really,' he replied, 'just resting.' 'Have you eaten today?' 'Oh, I ate something early this morning.' 'Would you like to have lunch with me?' 'Do you have some work I could do for you?' 'No work,' I replied 'I commute here to work from the city, but I would like to take you to lunch.' 'Sure,' he replied with a smile.

As he began to gather his things, I asked some surface questions. 'Where you headed?' 'St. Louis' 'Where you from?'

'Oh, all over; mostly Florida.' 'How long you been walking?' 'Fourteen years,' came the reply. I knew I had met someone unusual. We sat across from each other in the same restaurant I had left earlier. His face was weathered slightly beyond his 38 years. His eyes were dark yet clear, and he spoke with an eloquence and articulation that was startling. He removed his jacket to reveal a bright red T-shirt that said, 'Jesus is The Never Ending Story.'

Then Daniel's story began to unfold. He had seen rough times early in life. He'd made some wrong choices and reaped the consequences. Fourteen years earlier, while backpacking across the country, he had stopped on the beach in Daytona. He tried to hire on with some men who were putting up a large tent and some equipment. A concert, he thought. He was hired, but the tent would not house a concert but revival services, and in those services he saw life more clearly. He gave his life over to God 'Nothing's been the same since,' he said, 'I felt the Lord telling me to keep walking, and so I did, some 14 years now.' 'Ever think of stopping?' I asked. 'Oh, once in a while, when it seems to get the best of me But God has given me this calling. I give out Bibles That's what's in my sack. I work to buy food and Bibles, and I give them out when His Spirit leads.'

I sat amazed. My homeless friend was not homeless. He was on a mission and lived this way by choice. The question burned inside for a moment and then I asked: 'What's it like?' 'What?' 'To walk into a town carrying all your things on your back and to show your sign?' 'Oh, it was humiliating at first. People would stare and make comments. Once someone tossed a piece of half-eaten bread and made a gesture that certainly didn't make me feel welcome. But then it became humbling to realize that God was using me to touch lives and change people's concepts of other folks like me.'

My concept was changing, too. We finished our dessert and gathered his things. Just outside the door, he paused. He turned to me and said, 'Come Ye blessed of my Father and inherit the kingdom I've prepared for you. For when I was hungry you gave me food, when I was thirsty you gave me drink, a stranger and you took me in.'

I felt as if we were on holy ground. 'Could you use another Bible?' I asked. He said he preferred a certain translation. It traveled well and was not too heavy. It was also his personal favorite. 'I've read through it 14 times,' he said.

'I'm not sure we've got one of those, but let's stop by our church and see' I was able to find my new friend a Bible that would do well, and he seemed very grateful. 'Where are you headed from here?' I asked. 'Well, I found this little map on the back of this amusement park coupon.' 'Are you hoping to hire on there for awhile?' 'No, I just figure I should go there. I figure someone under that star right there needs a Bible, so that's where I'm going next.' He smiled, and the warmth of his spirit radiated the sincerity of his mission. I drove him back to the town-square where we'd met two hours earlier, and as we drove, it started raining. We parked and unloaded his things. 'Would you sign my autograph book?' he asked. 'I like to keep messages from folks I meet.'

I wrote in his little book that his commitment to his calling had touched my life. I encouraged him to stay strong. And I left him with a verse of scripture from Jeremiah, 'I know the plans I have for you, declared the Lord, 'plans to prosper you and not to harm you; Plans to give you a future and a hope.' 'Thanks, man,' he said. 'I know we just met and we're really just strangers, but I love you.' 'I know,' I said, 'I love you, too.' 'The Lord is good!' 'Yes, He is. How long has it been since someone hugged you?' I asked. A long time,' he replied. And so on the busy street corner in the drizzling rain, my new friend and I embraced, and I felt deep inside that I had been changed. He put his things on his back, smiled his winning smile and said, 'See you in the New Jerusalem.' 'I'll be there!' was my reply.

He began his journey again. He headed away with his sign dangling from his bedroll and pack of Bibles. He stopped, turned and said, 'When you see something that makes you think of me, will you pray for me?' 'You bet,' I shouted back, 'God bless.' 'God bless.' And that was the last I saw of him.

Late that evening as I left my office, the wind blew strong. The cold front had settled hard upon the town. I bundled up and hurried to my car. As I sat back and reached for the emergency brake, I saw them..... a pair of well-worn brown work gloves neatly laid over the length of the handle. I picked them up and thought of my friend and wondered if his hands would stay warm that night without them. Then I remembered his words: 'If you see something that makes you think of me, will you pray for me?' Today his gloves lie on my desk in my office. They help me to see the world and its people in a new way, and they help me remember those two hours with my unique friend and to pray for his ministry. 'See you in the New Jerusalem,' he said. Yes, Daniel, I know I will...I shall pass this way but once. Therefore, any good that I can do or any kindness that I can show, let me do it now, for I shall not pass this way again.'

A Time to Laugh (431)

Just for Laughs

--Two buddies were watching the game when one turned to his friend and said, "You won't believe it. All last night, I kept dreaming of a horse and the number five. So, I went to the track, put $500 on the fifth horse in the fifth race, and you won't believe what happened."

"Did he win?" "Nah," the guy said. "He came in fifth."

--The rabbi and the priest met at the town's annual picnic. Old friends, they began their usual banter. "This ham is really delicious," the priest teased the rabbi. "You really ought to try it. I know it's against your religion, but you just haven't lived until you've tried Mrs. Hall's prized Virginia Baked Ham. Tell me, when are you going to break down and have some?"

The rabbi looked at his friend with a big grin, and said, "At your wedding."

--A young American tourist goes on a guided tour of a creepy old castle in England. "How did you enjoy it?" the guide asked when it was over. "It was great," the girl replied, "but I was afraid I was going to see a ghost in some of those dark passageways." "No need to worry," said the guide. "I've never seen a ghost in all the time I've been here." "How long is that?" she asked.

"Oh, about 300 years."

--Bad Sports: After playing 18 holes of golf, our foursome was sitting around in the clubhouse settling our bets when another golfer stormed in. Fuming after a Lousy round, he slammed down his scorecard and announced, "If I wasn't married, I'd give this game up!"

--Our local college takes the rules of basketball to heart. A sign posted on the gym door reads: "Anyone caught swinging from the basketball nets will be suspended from the gym."

--As my mother and I toured the historic streets of London, we were awed by its history and by something else: the signs on construction sites. Whereas back home we admonish "POST NO BILLS," the elegant English declare "BILL STICKERS WILL BE PROSECUTED."

The British, of course, are also known for their humor. Beneath one such sign someone scrawled "BILL STICKERS IS INNOCENT!"

--HELPING HANDS: On the last night of our cruise, we returned to our stateroom to pack. Along the way, we almost fell over a man sitting on the floor in the hallway. "Are you all right?" my husband asked.

"Yes, I'm just helping," replied the man. He noticed our puzzled look and elaborated, "My wife is in there packing, and I'm staying out of the way."

--Divorce, International Style: The moral of this story is "Watch what you say over the airwaves." British deejay Tim Shaw didn't, and it cost him big. Hayley Shaw was listening to her husband's show one day when he joked that he would be willing to leave his family for another woman. That, reported the BBC, is when Hayley took action. She reportedly sold his car, a $45,000 Lotus Esprit Turbo, for 92 cents on eBay.
