Sunday of the Blind

Readings: 2Cor 10:1-7 and Mk 10:46-52

On the road that leads to Jerusalem, Jesus walks ahead of His disciples. They follow Him with trepidation, blinder than ever. They are unable to understand that the Son of Man must suffer and die, although it would be enough to follow Him resolutely to discover, in the depths of His abasement, who He is: the Son of God.

Mark, in relating the episode of the healing of blind Bartimaeus, sees beyond the circle of the Twelve to the whole Christian community which is also called to follow Jesus on the way of the passion, but is reluctant to do so. Paradoxically the blindness of this beggar, seated at the side of the road, does not prevent him from perceiving who Jesus is much better than the crowd does. He expresses his conviction by his repeated cries, by the leap of faith that makes him reject every support and hurry towards the one who calls him and is going to heal him. A miracle of the keen discernment of faith: not only does it save, but it also involves a man in the dynamism of conversion. No sooner cured than Bartimaeus, image of the faithful community and type of the perfect disciple, gets ready to follow Jesus on the way.

Symbol of “those who dwell in the darkness and in the shadow of death” (Lk 1:79), Bartimaeus thus becomes the model of those who cry out, who pray to be delivered from their blindness, in order to be able to get up and walk. “There is a deliverer for them; I will make them see” (Pascal). To see love coming under the sign of the cross. To see the gentle hands of God gathering up so many tears and incomprehensible deaths. To see the face of God rising, along with justice, over the horizon of the poor. To see the resurrection already at work in so many lives that have been renewed in the Church and in the world. Will we dare, with the help of the Son of David, to join the procession of believers, of pray-ers, of seers? “Rabbuni, let me see!”

Austin Musilli, the grandson of Shirley George, had been inducted into the National Honor Society at Wheeling Park High School on April 14th. We are so proud of him and his parents Tara and Donnie are so excited for him. He had several colleges inquiring about him especially because he runs cross-country for the school.

A Children Book

Our parishioner Lillian Siebieda, the wife of our church's architect Larry, wrote a children book titled: "Jason finds happiness." If parents and grandparents want to order this book to offer it for their children and grandchildren or any other children and at the same time help St. Jude children hospital for a right cause, please call Msgr Bakhos at 304-233-1688. Spirituality: Parents

These questions are related to parental example:

What kind of religious life do children see parents leading?

Any signs of prayer: before and after meals, at bedtime, in the morning?

Regular Mass attendance? Periodic confession?

Are youngsters taught the rosary and given one to carry?

Do they ever see a religious medal around a parent's neck?

Do the parents know the parish priest?

Do they involve themselves and children in the work or activities of the parish?

Do they teach children to support the parish financially?

What kind of language is heard in the home?

The language of love or the language of bickering and divisiveness and anger?

Is the language crude and obscene, or is it respectful?

Can children see affection and understanding between their parents?

Unspoken evidence of willing sacrifice for each other?

What do children see parents watching on television?

Is that perhaps even more important that what children themselves might watch?

What guidelines are children given? What do they learn by example?

Bad example can be such boomerang. Who doesn't know parents who, in the presence of their children, criticize or ridicule or show complete indifference to their own parents?

What happens when children are given this example growing up?

Do they treat their parents the same way they saw their own grandparents treated?

What a magnificent effect on children is the example of parents who take care of their own parents as they age, become ill, lonely, in need. Many parents have sacrificed a great deal to bring one or the other of their own widowed parent into their home for extended periods. What a wonderful example to their own children. Obviously, such arrangements are not always possible or even appropriate. It may be better for everyone for an aged or infirm parent to be in a nursing home, to receive the care required. In those cases, then, it benefits children to be taken to visit a grandparent, to help in little ways, to know that their parents have not forgotten their own parents. --John Cardinal O'Connor, Covenant of Love, pp.74-75.

Wisdom: Friends

Read Each One Carefully and Think About It a Second or Two

1. I love you not because of who you are, but because of who I am when I am with you.
2. No man or woman is worth your tears, and the one who is, won't make you cry.
3. Just because someone doesn't love you the way you want them to, doesn't mean they don't love you with all they have.
4. A true friend is someone who reaches for your hand and touches your heart.
5. The worst way to miss someone is to be sitting right beside them knowing you can't have them.
6. Never frown, even when you are sad, because you never know who is falling in love with your smile.
7. To the world you may be one person, but to one person you may be the world.
8. Don't waste your time on a man/woman, who isn't willing to waste their time on you.
9. Maybe God wants us to meet a few wrong people before meeting the right one, so that when we finally meet the person, we will know how to be grateful.
10. Don't cry because it is over, smile because it happened.
11. There's always going to be people that hurt you so what you have to do is keep on trusting and just be more careful about who you trust next time around.
12. Make yourself a better person and know who you are before you try and know someone else and expect them to know you.
13. Don't try so hard, the best things come when you least expect them to.

REMEMBER: WHATEVER HAPPENS, HAPPENS FOR A REASON.

Story

In September of 1862, the Civil War tilted decisively in favor of the South. The morale of the Northern army dipped to its lowest point of the war. Large numbers of Union troops were in full retreat in Virginia. Northern leaders began to fear the worst. They saw no way to reverse the situation and turn the beaten, exhausted troops into a useful army again.

There was only one general with the ability to work such a miracle. That was General George McClellan. He had trained the men for combat and they admired him. But neither the War Department nor the rest of the Cabinet members saw the connection. Only President Abraham Lincoln recognized Gen. McClellan's leadership skills.

Fortunately, Lincoln ignored the protests of his advisors and reinstated McClellan back in command. He told the general to go down to Virginia and give those soldiers something no other man on earth could give them: enthusiasm, strength and hope. McClellan accepted the command. He mounted his great black horse and cantered down the dusty Virginia roads.

What happened next is hard to describe. Northern leaders couldn't explain it. Union soldiers couldn't explain it either. Even McClellan couldn't quite explain what happened. Gen. McClellan met the retreating Union columns, waved his cap in the air and shouted words of encouragement. When the worn out men saw their beloved teacher and leader, they began to take heart once again. They were moved with an unshakable feeling that now things could be different, that finally things could be all right again.

Bruce Catton, the great Civil War historian, describes this excitement that grew when word spread that McClellan was back in command. "Down mile after mile of Virginia roads the stumbling columns came alive.

Men threw their caps and knapsacks into the air, and yelled until they could yell no more ... because they saw this dapper little rider outlined against the purple starlight.

"And this, in a way, was the turning point of the war ... No one could ever quite explain how it happened. But whatever it was, it gave President Lincoln and the North what was needed. And history was forever changed because of it."

The story of Gen. McClellan illustrates dramatically the impact a leader can have on the human spirit.

A Time to Laugh (4)

Love

A little boy was heartbroken to find his pet turtle lying on its back, lifeless and still, beside the pond.

His father did his best to console him: "Don't cry, son. We'll arrange a lovely funeral for Mr. turtle.

We'll make him a little coffin all lined in silk and get the undertaker to make a headstone for his grave,

Mr. Turtle's name carved on it. Then we'll have fresh flowers placed on the grave each day and make a little picket fence to go all around it."

The little boy dried his eyes and became enthusiastic about the project. When all was ready the cortege was formed -father, mother, maid and child chief mourner- and began to move solemnly towards the pond to bring in the body. But the body had vanished.

Suddenly they spied Mr. Turtle emerging from the depths of the pond and swimming around merrily. The little boy stared at his friend in bitter disappointment, then said, "Let's kill him."

Religion

Goldstein, aged ninety-two, had lived through pogroms in Poland, concentration camps in Germany and dozens of other persecutions against Jews.

"Oh, Lord," he said, "Isn't it true that we are Your chosen people?"

A heavenly voice replied, "Yes, GOLDSTEIN, the Jews are My chosen people."

"Well, then, isn't it time You chose somebody else?"

Grace

At a party in Japan a visitor was introduced to a popular Japanese drink. After his first drink he noticed the furniture in the room moving around.

"This is a very powerful drink," he said to his host.

"Not particularly," the host replied. "This happens to be an earthquake."

Tell me this won't happen to us!

A senior citizen was driving down the freeway, his car phone rang. Answering, he heard his wife's voice urgently warning him, 'Herman, I just heard on the news that there's a car going the wrong way on Interstate 77. Please be careful!' 'Heck,' said Herman, 'It's not just one car. It's hundreds of them!'

Tell me this won't happen to us!

Three retirees, each with a hearing loss, were playing golf one fine March day. One remarked to the other, 'Windy, isn't it?'

'No,' the second man replied, 'it's Thursday.'

And the third man chimed in, 'So am I. Let's have a beer'
