5th Sunday of the Resurrection

Readings: Eph 2:1-10 and Jn 21:15-19

The gospel reading appears to be a composite of distinct episodes that have been brought together and now appear as one. It begins with an account of a miraculous catch of fish into which is woven a second report, that of a meal on the shore (vv. 1-14). This is followed by an exchange between Jesus and Peter (vv. 15-19).

The encounter of Jesus with the group of disciples begins and ends with the announcement that the risen Jesus revealed himself to his disciples (vv. 1,14). This tells us that even those who had been his intimate companions did not recognize the Lord in his risen state (v. 4). Here recognition comes through Jesus' actions, not through his words. He called them "children", a term that may be affectionate but that also carries the sense of undeveloped understanding. He directs them to cast the nets on the right side, the preferred side for right-handed people. Only after they pulled in the multitude of fish did the disciple whom Jesus loved identify the man on the shore: "it is the Lord." When they had come safely to shore, the others also recognized him, though there seems to have been a fundamental difference in his present state. They are tempted to ask who he is while at the same time somehow knowing his identity (v. 12).

Much has been made about the disciples having gone to Galilee and resuming their former occupations. Some interpret this as evidence of their lack of faith, even apostasy. This is not necessarily the case, since there was a tradition in the early Church that the risen Jesus told them he would meet them in Galilee (cf. Mark 14:28; 16:7). Besides, nowhere in this passage does Jesus reprimand them for their behavior. This group of seven included Simon Peter, Thomas, Nathanael, the two sons of Zebedee, and two unnamed disciples. The Beloved Disciple, though not clearly identified, was one of them. Most interpreters believe he was one of those not explicitly named. However, this could have included the sons of Zebedee, for they were not expressly named either. Though he was the one in the boat who recognized the Lord, he does not play an important role here. The primary focus is on Peter.

There are two major reasons for suggesting the report of the meal is a separate tradition. First, the episode of the miraculous catch is complete without it. Second, the net captures a multitude of fish, but Jesus prepares other fish. Verse 10 seems to link the two scenes. A meal prepared by Jesus, especially the risen Jesus, certainly has Eucharistic or at least eschatological connotations. He feeds them, though he himself does not eat.

Finally, Jesus' exchange with Peter has many links with Peter's earlier denial of him. The charcoal fire Jesus prepared is the same kind of fire near which Peter stood warming himself when he denied knowing Jesus (cf. 18:18). Having been sobered by this denial, Peter does not now declare that he is capable of being more faithful than the others (v. 15; cf. Mark 14:29-30; Matt 26:33-35). Three times Peter denied; three times he is called upon to declare his love. When he does, he is commissioned to assume the role of shepherd in the place of Jesus. He is now a shepherd who can show compassion those who have failed.

People's prayer for Priests

Dear Lord,

We pray that the Blessed Mother wrap her mantle around your priests and through her intercession strengthen them for their ministry.

We pray that Mary will guide your priests to follow her own words, "Do whatever He tells you".

May your priests have the heart of St. Joseph, Mary's most chaste spouse.

May the Blessed Mother's own pierced heart inspire them to embrace all who suffer at the foot of the cross.

May your priests be holy, filled with the fire of your love seeking nothing but your greater glory and the salvation of souls. Amen.

Wisdom

And yet we must thirst for justice and be on fire for the Kingdom of God. Why? Because everything that is good diffuses itself. The sun is good, and it diffuses itself in light and heat; the flower is good, and it diffuses itself in perfume; the animal is good, and it diffuses itself in the generation of its kind; man is good, and he diffuses himself in the communication of thought; a Christian is good, and must therefore diffuse his

Christianity, throw sparks from the flame of his love, enkindle fires in the inflammable hearts of others, and speak of his Lover because he is Love, for “out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks.”

Strong love makes strong actions, and the measure of our zeal in bringing souls to the feet of Christ is the measure of our love of him.

Converting souls to Christ, then, is not based on the pride of propaganda and public relations, but on a desire for perfection. An apostle desires to bring men and women to Our Lord not for the same reason a business executive wishes to increase his trade.

The businessman advertises to increase his profits; the Christian propagandizes to increase the happiness of others. He wants to bring souls to Our Lord for the same reason he wants to see the sun shine, the flowers bloom, and lambs grow into sheep—because it is their perfection and therefore their happiness.

If a pencil is made for writing, we do not want to see it used for digging; if a bird is made for flying, we do not want to see it change places with the mole; if a soul is made for the fullness of life, then we do not want to see it clip its wings and wallow in hatred, half-truths, and marred loveliness. We want to see it united with its perfection which is the Life and Truth and Love and Beauty of God.

That is why a Christian soul is apostolic—it loves perfection, wholeness, completeness, happiness: God. And therefore it wants everyone to be God-like and God-ward.

And no cost is too great to achieve that end, for as Saint Paul writes:

“Who then shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation? Or distress? Or famine? Or nakedness? Or danger? Or persecution? Or the sword? As it is written: For your sake we are put to death all the day long. We are accounted as sheep for the slaughter.” But in all these things we overcome, because of him that has loved us. For I am sure that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor might, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus Our Lord.

Story

Sally jumped up as soon as she saw the Surgeon come out of the operating room. She said: "How is my little boy? Is he going to be O.K.? When can I see him?" The Surgeon said, "I'm sorry, we did all we could." Sally said, "Why do little children get cancer, doesn't GOD care any more? GOD, where were you when my son needed you?" The Surgeon said, "One of the nurses will be out in a few minutes to let you spend time with your son's remains before it's transported to the university." Sally asked that the nurse stay with her while she said Good-bye to her son. Sally ran her fingers through his thick red curly hair. The nurse said, "Would you like a lock of his hair?" Sally nodded yes. The nurse cut a lock of his hair and put it in a plastic bag and handed it to Sally. Sally said, "It was Jimmy's idea to give his body to the university for study. He said it might help somebody else," and that is what he wanted. I said, No at first, but Jimmy said, "Mom I won't be using it after I die, maybe it will help some other little boy to be able to spend one more day with his mother." Sally said, "My Jimmy had a heart of Gold, always thinking of someone else and always wanting to help others if he could." Sally walked out of the Children's Hospital for the last time now after spending most of the last 6 months there. She sat the bag with Jimmy's things in it on the seat beside of her in the car. The drive home was hard and it was even harder to go into an empty house. She took the bag to Jimmy's room and started placing the model cars and things back in his room exactly where he always kept them. She laid down across his bed and cried herself to sleep holding his pillow. Sally woke up about midnight and laying beside of her on the bed, was a letter folded up. She opened the letter, it said: "Dear Mom, I know your going to miss me, but don't think that I will ever forget you or stop loving you because I'm not around to say I LOVE YOU. I'll think of you every day mom and I'll love you even more each day. Some day we will see each other again. If you want to adopt a little boy so you won't be so lonely, he can have my room and my old stuff to play with. If you decide to get a girl instead, she probably wouldn't like the same things as us boys do, so you will have to buy her dolls and stuff girls like. Don't be sad when you think about me, this is really a great place. Grandma and Grandpa met me as soon as I got here and showed me around some, but it will take a long time to see everything here. The angels are so friendly, I love to watch them fly. Jesus doesn't look like any of the pictures I saw of Him, but I knew it was Him as soon as I saw Him. Jesus took me to see GOD! And guess what mom? I got to sit on GOD'S knee and talk to Him like I was somebody important. I told GOD that I wanted to write you a letter and tell you Good-bye and everything, but I knew that wasn't allowed. God handed me some paper and His own personal pen to write you this letter with. I think Gabriel is the name of the angel that is going to drop this letter off to you. God said for me to give you the answer to one of the questions you asked Him about. Where was He when I needed him? God said, "The same place He was when Jesus was on the cross. He was right there, as He always is with all His children. Oh, by the way Mom, nobody else can see what is written on this paper but you. To everyone else, it looks like a blank piece of paper. I have to give God His pen back now, he has some more names to write in the Book Of Life. Tonight I get to sit at the table with Jesus for Supper. I'm sure the food will be great. I almost forgot to let you know - Now I don't hurt anymore, the cancer is all gone. I'm glad because I couldn't stand that pain anymore and God couldn't stand to see me suffer the pain either, so He sent The Angel of Mercy to get me. The Angel said I was Special Delivery!

Signed with love from: God & Jesus & Me." Take 60 seconds & give this a shot! Let's pray to God for each other. Then sit back and watch the power of God work in your life for doing the thing that you know He loves. JUST TALK TO HIM. ENJOY YOUR DAY!

A guru asked his disciples how they could tell when the night had ended and the day begun. One said, “When you see an animal in the distance and can tell whether it is a cow or a horse.”

 “Wrong again,” said the guru. “Well, then, what is it?” asked the disciples. “When you look into the face of any man and recognize your brother in him; when you look into the face of any woman and recognize in her your sister. If you cannot do this, no matter what time it is by the sun it is still night.”
